

ABSTRACT

A processor-based method and a system are provided which are configured to regressively cluster pixels of an image and segment the image based upon the step of regressively clustering.